Home Care: Improving Quality of Life at Reduced Costs

Independence at home

- People want to stay independent at home rather than institutional care in a hospital or nursing home.
- Independence at home, more cost effective than institutional care.

A chance to grow in a nurturing family environment

- Our experience shows that premature infants grow and thrive once they are in their homes.
- Many premature infants rely on private duty nursing to care for tracheotomies, ventilators, oxygen, and feeding tubes for the first 1-3 years. Most wean off all equipment and nursing care.

Managing complex medical conditions at home

- Private duty nursing allows children and adults with disabilities to live long, fulfilling lives at home with their families.
- Private duty nursing can safely care for patients at home with tracheotomies, ventilators, oxygen use, IV therapies, and other highly-complex conditions.
